

Our Agreement with You

We look forward to welcoming you to the National War Museum of Scotland. We care for collections of national and international importance, preserving, interpreting and opening access to them for current and future generations. Our aim is that your visit allows a broader audience to enjoy our collections and museum.

We ask that you read this beforehand and share with all adults accompanying you.

Our expectations for your school

- Teachers remain responsible for their pupils' behaviour whilst in the museum
- Teachers and accompanying adults will remain with pupils at all times
- Groups should arrive at least 20 minutes before the start of your pre-booked sessions, or to let us know if you're running late
- Pupils respect the museum and the objects on display
- Pupils respect museum staff and other visitors during your visit.

Our promises to you

In return, we promise to:

- Before your visit, provide you with resources and information to make your visit relevant, inspiring and interesting
- Greet you on arrival and help you find your way around the museum
- Answer any questions or help you during your visit if you need it
- Deliver engaging sessions for your pupils, where pre-booked
- Listen to your feedback and improve our future programmes.
